The Delivery Team

Rural Industries Skill Training @ RiST

RiST commenced operations in 1992 in Hamilton, Victoria, established by a group of farmers in response to a lack of quality agricultural training available. RiST has since grown to become a leader in rural training throughout South Eastern Australia and continues to drive industry best practice across many rural sectors.

RiST training addresses a wide range of issues that positively affect the profitability of agriculture. Training includes pasture selection and management, animal health and nutrition, livestock selection and breeding, natural resource management, on farm financial analysis, marketing, human resource management and succession planning.

RiST also offers opportunities for participants to obtain formal qualifications through our Diploma of Agriculture program and through our traineeship/apprenticeship program.

The Sheep CRC is a partnership of Australia's leading sheep industry organizations. The aim of the CRC Program is to turn Australia's innovations into successful new products, services and technologies, and make the Australian sheep industry more efficient, productive and competitive. The reproduction project is developing new approaches to improve lamb and weaner survival through better management and genetic selection.

The Deliverers

Deliverers retained by RiST are drawn from the agriculture industry and understand and relate to the issues facing people working in agriculture. RiST deliverers are selected based on their ability to demonstrate the following:

- They have significant Industry credibility
- They possess relevant practical and technical experience
- They have Advanced Facilitation skills
- They have a Current Workplace Training qualification
- They are committed to helping producers achieve practice change

LIFETIME EWE MANAGEMENT

Gain the skills and confidence to manage the ewe reproduction cycle to increase the profitability of your sheep enterprise
 Delivered by leading industry experts

Lifetime Ewe Management

This program focuses on improving producer understanding of the influences of ewe nutrition on the performance of the ewe and her progeny. Producers will gain the skills and confidence to manage the ewe reproduction cycle to increase the profitability of their sheep enterprise.

The program is run over 6 sessions and is delivered to small groups of 5 to maximize learning and interaction between producers. All sessions are conducted on your farm, using your sheep and delivered by leading industry experts. A "hands on" approach with a focus on condition scoring, pasture assessing and feed budgeting ensures that the outcomes are practical and applicable to your business.

WHY SHOULD YOU ATTEND?

More than 70 groups and over 300 producers who manage over 2,000,000 Merino and crossbred ewes have already participated in the Lifetime Ewe Management program. Through participation in Lifetime Ewe Management these producers have increased stocking rates and weaning percentages to produce 30% more lambs/ha and have been able to halve rates of ewe mortality.

Lifetime Ewe Management Training

The Lifetime Ewe Management workshop provides a pathway for you to develop a successful and productive animal production system.

Weaning and preparing ewes for next year's joining

Setting up for joining/manipulating ewe condition

Linking ewe condition at joining with lambing potential

Mid-pregnancy-looking forward and planning for lambing

Late pregnancy and lambing

Economic analysis of different feeding strategies.

Lifetime Ewe Management

COURSE COSTS:

The Lifetime Ewe Management course cost is $1900 up front (or in instalments) with FarmReady providing up to $1500 subsidy per person (once the training has been completed) provided the producer does not access FarmReady for other subsidised training during the period of delivery. This means the net cost to the producer is $400.

NATIONALLY RECOGNISED TRAINING:

RiST is registered to provide Nationally Recognised Training throughout Australia. Students who attend a RiST course have the opportunity to gain competencies from recognized qualifications on successful completion of the training.

COMPETENCIES:

RTE4104A – Develop livestock feeding plans
